I’m Eva Roselló Laporta from Valencia, Spain. I have studied Environmental sciences at Valencia University. I have lived in Madeira and Azores islands, Portugal for a year where I worked for a NGO about birds and nature conservation on the islands. One of my favourite countries is Iceland, which I have visited many times and there I volunteered as team leader in NGO:s to protect the environment and the natural parks. I also lived in Chicago for some months to learn more English, and to live the life of a big city.

Since beginning of August I volunteer at the Rural Heroes project. It is coordinated by the local organisation Rural Life Finland in Kemijärvi, Finland. I will be part of the rural community by helping in kindergartens, primary schools, youth clubs and an elderly home, as well as work with horses on how they can have positive influence on people’s social behaviour.

I participated in the European Rally in Ireland and I will help at the Rural Youth Europe office too. I will also be part of some national youth projects in Finland by Finland Svenska Ungsdomsförbund if, participating in some festivals and youth theatres in Pargas and Vaasa, in the Saga Phoenix project about racism and xenophobia issues, and many other international projects and seminars like LIFE3.

I will try to learn Swedish and Finish language. I hope that the change of surrounding from city to rural will be a great experience as well as a chance to meet Finland and part of European and international projects. BE THE CHANGE!

“Nothing permanent except change”
Heraclitus

Another Rally week full of good people, good activities, good surprises and good (I) Irish weather has come to an end. The theme of this year was “be the change!” Read more about all the good stuff said, done, heard and learnt on pages 06–07. It is hard to leave such events, knowing that the wonderful bubble of laughter, new friends and things learnt soon will be popped. It is sad to come back home and realize that the magic is gone. Though I can remind you to (whatever event you have been to) dig out pictures and remember the good times you’ve had together with other young people from around Europe.

In any situation leaving means some kind of changes. During the General Assembly 2013 there were some changes in the Board: the representatives from group 1 Gwennan Davies and group 4 Adrian Szymczak left the board of Rural Youth Europe. The new talents elected into the board are Russell Carrington and Linda Strazdina. I want to take the opportunity to wish Gwennan and Adrian all the best and at the same time say a warm welcome to the new board members! Meet your new board on pages 08–09.

There are many interesting things going on in Rural Youth Europe right now, and I am sure there is something for everyone in this edition of the INFO magazine! And if you want to know even more than this edition of the INFO can provide you with I recommend you to check (and like!) our Facebook page (“Rural Youth Europe“), visit the webpage (www.ruralyouth-europe.com) or follow us on Twitter @RYEurope.

Go exploring, there are always new things to discover!

“Coaching for inclusion: Closing the gap between urban and rural youth”

The Spring Seminar 2013 was held at the European Youth Centre in Strasbourg, France, from 26 May to 2 June, as a joint study session between Rural Youth Europe and Youth Express Network. 40 participants from 20 countries came together to explore what social inclusion means and how we can use coaching to help young people in different areas.

The Spring Seminar 2013 started on a rainy Saturday in Strasbourg, some of us had not planned for, only packing sandals and shorts; assuming France was always warm and sunny. However, we got warm soon enough, kick starting the evening with icebreakers and getting to know each other.

The official program started on Sunday morning, where we had some more icebreakers and team-building exercises trying to unite us as one. In the afternoon, we had a Welcome Space with different workstations to learn about the aims of the week, about RYE, Y-E-N and the Council of Europe, as well as why we were all here. To top off a great day of getting familiar with one another we had the classic international evening with great snacks and beverages from all the countries.

After a long day (and evening) on Monday people was a bit tired and hungry when going down for breakfast on Tuesday, but when we came down everybody was given a paper passport; some red, some blue and some green. As the program was not supposed to start yet, everybody was a bit confused when it turned out not everybody would get into breakfast. Part of the prep team lined up as border control, only some of the passports had stamps and valid signatures.

Chaos arised and we did not know the criteria’s for getting in or not. Soon we learned that the ones with the red passports were “privileged”, whereas the rest of us had to go around finding people to help and learning the rules of the bureaucracy. After a while, some learned how to beat the system, getting the “privileged” people to share their food with us, and eventually the role-play ended, so everybody could get some food.

This unexpected session really got us to experience the feeling of social exclusion, just because we had a different colour on our passport. The rest of the morning, we had discussions about what social inclusion is, and what needs and challenges the youth from our organizations had regarding the topic.

We spent the afternoon learning about the work that the Council of Europe does regarding social inclusion, with workshops on for example the Youth Department, the social charter, and the ENTER-project. In the evening, we had a game night, and some of us wanted to go dancing in the city centre.

Wednesday was another packed day, where we started exploring coaching, and what the word meant to us by taking a stand on different statements like “coaching is only for those who are failing” or “the coach and coachees are equal”. This really got the debate going, and we got to see each other’s perspectives, and our different definitions of the word!

In the afternoon we had visits to three local NGO’s to see how they work with youth and social inclusion in Strasbourg, among them an organisation that works with young homeless people. For me the thought of young homeless people is a bit distant, and it was therefore interesting to see the work they do!

After the afternoon session, we all visited the youth centre where one of the local participants in the study session worked, where we got to talk to her kids and ask them on their perspective on coaching and youth work. They really opened up to us, and had great, reflected answers that showed how our theories and thoughts worked in practice!

To end a fantastic day we had dinner at a local restaurant, Mosaïque. It started up in 1993 by women in precarious situations that struggled to get jobs, who got together and wanted to start something. What started as a small kitchen in a tiny dark room, developed into a great organisation and restaurant. After a great dinner, some of us also took a trip to the city centre and danced the night away!

After days of learning about social inclusion, visits and discussion Thursday and Friday was all about developing our skills, with lots of workshops on topics, for example listening skills, giving and receiving feedback, and learning about different coaching styles. These sessions made us able to go really in depth on our struggles in the organisations and was very productive.

Friday afternoon we had free time in Strasbourg, where we got to enjoy shopping, tourist sites and many pubs. In the evening most of us gathered in a bar, where we occupied the entire dance floor, enjoying what would be one of our last night’s together!

Saturday was a sad day being the last, where we had a session of Open Space, making action plans for ourselves and evaluating before we had to say goodbye!

This week has been truly unforgettable, with so many great people and reflections! So big thanks to the prep team, the participants and the Council of Europe!

SOFYA PIRADYAN,
Y-E-N
This is the reason, I sit here, back in my home in Wexford, Ireland, attempting to describe a week in my life, which was so good, I struggle to find the adjectives to do its description justice.

This year’s European Rural Youth Rally, focused on the idea that each and every young person attending the rally, had the potential to ‘be the change’ in their community. An important message to instil in the young people of Europe these days, in my opinion. Week in, week out, we hear news headlines describing recession, job losses, and debt. With all the negativity in the news these days, it is easy to forget all the good people we meet and the positive news we hear in our communities every day. I believe that now more than ever, it is vital to remind people, especially young people, that they do have ‘control over the local’. We may not have much influence over what happens in the corridors of power in Berlin or Strasbourg, but we can make difference in our community.

“BE THE CHANGE” this was the motto which brought us together. This was the reason that I, and approximately 100 other young people, from all over Europe, descended on Gurteen Agricultural College in Tipperary last week.
I, along with my Clonakilty Macra na Feirme clubmate Gerard O’Donovan, was given the opportunity to attend the rally, as winners of the ‘European Rural Youth Project of the Year for 2012’. Gerard and I, were part of a group from Clonakilty Macra na Feirme who decided to ‘be the change’ in the Clonakilty community, by organising and running the world’s first ‘Random Acts of Kindness Festival’ in the summer of 2012. The motto of our festival was ‘Cut the misery, Spread the positivity’.

The festival had the simple aim of bringing smiles to people’s faces and giving something back to our community. It involved three days of small simple events which were ‘free, fun and for all ages’. Events included street party, bubble blowing ceremony, picnics, sandcastle competitions and much more. The festival was great success gaining local and national acclaim. It came as a major honour for us, to get the opportunity to share our simple idea with our European colleagues at this year’s rally, and we were delighted with the positive response with which it was received.

What a week! Where does one start to explain such a week? For a start, even the setting was unique, as Irish person to be in an agricultural college in Tipperary surrounded by people from all over Europe, was a surreal experience. To be swimming at 7.30am on a Monday morning with a man from Dortmund, an hour later discussing ‘community’ with people from England, Finland, and Latvia and then sitting down for dinner with a Slovenians, Swiss and Welsh people, it’s not your typical trip to Tipperary by any means. But no matter who I spoke to over the week whether English was their first, second or fourth language it didn’t matter, everyone at the rally was there to learn, to make friends and to most importantly to have fun.

To pick a highlight from the week is very hard. I suppose, personally, the aspect of the rally I enjoyed the most and gained the most from, was meeting new people and making new friends. The rally was also a great opportunity for me as a member of Macra na Feirme to learn about other organisations around Europe and I hope to take some of what I have learned and adapt to my own Macra na Feirme club at home. Learning about different fund raising events people had held, how they attract new members and how they make a difference in their community.

With respect to the various events held over the week, I thoroughly enjoyed the international buffet, international entertainment night and the Parade in Birr. These events, gave delegates the opportunity to share their culture and traditions, whether it be their traditional dress, their food and drink or their music and language. Learning about other nations and cultures is always fun in my opinion and of course hearing other nationality’s thoughts on Ireland is even better, for example. I loved watching, their disbelief when seeing the narrow twisty rural Irish roads and further amazement when seeing the way Irish people drive on them.

All in all, it was a fantastic week. It was interesting, enjoyable, fun, and I could use many other positive adjectives to describe it, but I suppose what sums it up the best is, that it was a week which I was very sad to see end. And as for the fun and ‘craic’ we had, it was a case of, as we say in Ireland ‘you just had to be there’.

NEW SLOGAN

Rural Youth Europe wants to be visible around Europe and has therefore started creating different PR materials to spread the knowledge about who we are and what we do. One of the ideas was to create a notebook. When thinking about the layout the idea to create a slogan was born. During the Rally in Ireland 2013 the participants were asked to come up with different slogans. There were many good slogans and it was not easy to choose the best of them, but after discussions the Board could decide on a winner. The slogan the Board decided on was “Rural Youth Europe – Breaking Boundaries Building Bridges”. We say congratulations to Elin Egeland Roda (Norway), Karen Følgesvold (Norway) and Piret Kalamägi (Estonia)!

Favourite quote?
“You’re a short time living and a long time dead, so keep your water weak and your cider strong!”

That is by Adge Cutler who started an English band called The Wurzels who sing funny songs about the countryside, but I like to think there is a lot of truth in what they say.

What do you dream about?
Hmmm, I have a wide variety of dreams when I sleep, probably because I eat too much cheese. My day-time dreams are the best though, and often whilst driving I will dream about big ideas. If the dreams go well then I put the ideas into practice in real life.

What languages do you speak?
Being from the UK makes you really lazy for learning other languages but I do speak a bit of French. I am a bit out of practise though and really need to go to France to get better, and maybe find some more cheese!??
General Assembly

The General Assembly of Rural Youth Europe 2013 was held August 9th in Gurteen, Co. Tipperary in Ireland.

The day before the GA all delegates had the opportunity to attend one of two workshops focused on communication. The workshops were called “Communication and Advocating” and “Information Flow”.

The Annual Report 2012 was presented by Gwennan Davies. During the year 2012 there were four events; Spring seminar “Bridging the age gap: Working Together to Develop Rural Communities” in Hungary, the European Rally “Reach Your Potential: Developing Youth Leadership in Rural Communities” in Poland and the Autumn Seminar “Protect the Environment for Your Future” in Switzerland. In addition there was also an evaluation of Youth Employment Action YEA in March in Estonia.

In September 2012 the Secretary General of RYEurope Amanda Hajnal moved on to new tasks. Pia Numio-Perälä was chosen to continue the work as Secretary General in November 2012.

The winning project in the Best Practice competition 2012 was Macra na Feirme with the project “Random acts of kindness festival”. The festival was held in June 2011 by Cionakilly Macra.

The new development plan for 2014-2016 was presented. The development plan has five key areas RYEurope is going to focus on the next three years. Those are

• Membership (strengthening relationships between Member Organisations (MOs) and Board Members, look for new members

• Partnership (promoting partnership on three levels: with the MOs, Partner Organisations and with other European Networks)

• Activities (apart from three annual events also one additional event during the years 2014-2016. The events of RYEurope focus on e.g. youth participation, intercultural learning, rural development and social integration)

• Communication (RYEurope aims at having good communications with their MOs and their members, and European Partners. The INFO magazine will be developed and RYEurope will be more present on the internet.

• Advocacy (To promote lobbying and communication around policy documents and other issues regarding youth organisations. RYEurope will support its members to become key advocators in their local communities as well as encourage the members to be present at all levels of democracy process of decision making).

There were some changes in the Board; the term of Board members Gwennan Davies (Group 1) and Adrian Szymczak (Group 4) came to an end, and Russell Carrington and Linda Strazdina continue in the positions as regional Board Members.

On the 27th of July to 3rd of August, 1100 youth members at the age of 14-30 years gathered in Stokke (Norway) for the Nordic 4H-camp. The camp is every two year, and has representatives from 4H in Norway, Finland, Sweden and Denmark.

During this week all the participants are tenting, and has limited access to the normal luxury of hot showers and soft beds. In return, they get to meet great new people, or as we in 4H like to say, “Friends you just haven’t met yet”.

The theme of the week was “Think, Love, Do, Move” as a reference to the H’s in 4H – Head, Heart, Hands and Health. This theme was visible during the opening ceremony, as all the counties were divided into groups that illustrated the theme words with costumes.

The camp started with different teambuilding activities and a fantastic opening show on the camp stage in the evening. The next days were filled with 40 different activities and trips that the participants could choose from, for example climbing, frisbee golf, a course in chainsaw, dancing and different excursions in the county. The evening program included concerts with local bands, a chainsaw timber-sculpting show, a magician and dancing.

At the last day of camp, there was a big volleyball tournament where all the counties and countries fought with sweat and tears (and laughter) to get the fame and glory as volleyball champions. A famous Norwegian band called Plumbo ended the camp programme with a concert, and the night was then filled with dancing, hugging and singing by the campfire until sunrise.

A lot of sad faces and young couples holding hands could be seen, anxious to leave their new camp love behind. Still, there was hope and energy in the air, knowing there was only two years until next Nordic 4H camp!

The theme for the week was ‘Nature and Photography’ and the School of Forestry at Kullaa was an ideal situation to deliver such a workshop, as it showed off nature at its very finest and gave many of our youths the perfect opportunity to capture photographs of the beautiful scenery.

The workshop was attended by participants from each of the 4 countries and they ranged from 14 – 17 years old, many of which had never attended such a seminar before.

The week began when all the groups from each country arrived on Monday afternoon. We were all shown to our accommodation and got the opportunity to get acquainted to our new roommates for the next week.

When the participants had become familiar with each other, the leaders and their surroundings, it was time give them the chance to work together. Everyone was split into 2 teams which was a mix of all 4 countries and we were given a list 20 challenges, some of which was very simple for example: collect 5 different berries or give a massage to one of the leaders. However some were not so simple such as doing 100 press ups, making an outfit/dress out of magazine pages and making up a theme song which must include the 4 countries in it. Despite the language barrier, the youths were able to communicate and both teams successfully completed the challenge.

On Tuesday we welcomed members from Porin kameraseura (Pori Camera Club) to give us all some technical and practical tips on how to improve our photography skills no matter how basic our cameras. The presentations explained how a very simple change on the camera settings can change a poor picture into a brilliant picture. After we had been shown how to do all the tips we were then given the afternoon to try out what we learned and with the scenery at Kullaa there were plenty of opportunities for us to be ‘snap happy’.

Later that evening we got to try out a genuine Finnish tradition, the sauna. It was a brilliant way to relax after being busy all day.

On Wednesday the group had a day trip to Koivuniemenherra domestic animal park where visitors were able to help with routine jobs round the farm, like feeding pigs, collecting eggs and milking cows. We were also given the opportunity for a tractor ride around the farm.

After having lunch at the farm we then travelled to Yyteri Beach where everyone could go swimming in the Baltic Sea and could play games such as football and volleyball. We then travelled to Pori and were given the chance to do some shopping and sightseeing around the town before having dinner at Hesburger, which is Finland’s version of McDonald’s.

On Thursday morning we made preparations for the nature hike through the forest which run from the School at Kullaa, up to a campsite beside the lake. The participants were divided into groups of 4 but each group had to consist of at least two nationalities. Each group was given a trangia stove so that they could boil water for refreshments on the hike and each group also had to cook their dinner on the trangia stoves that night when we arrived at the campsite and had erected the tents. After dinner there was the opportunity to use the sauna at the campsite and to go swimming in the lake. After the sauna and swimming, we barbecued sausages, toasted marshmallows on the campfire and cooked crepes.

After breakfast on Friday morning there were group activities at the lake. Canoeing, fishing and church boat rowing was the entertainment for the morning before returning to the school at Kullaa, at which point we said goodbye to the French group. It was then time for the rest of us to pack and clean up before the leaving party.

The leaving party consisted of different games which would be common within 4H clubs and Young Farmers clubs and everyone really enjoyed themselves. There was then a surprise planned for us by the 4H. They had arranged for us to try on Sumo suits which provided a lot of laughs well into the night and was a brilliant way to end the week.

On Saturday there was just time for final packing and cleaning after breakfast before it was time for everyone to say goodbye and head home.

Each of the participants had a very enjoyable time at the workshop and made lifelong friendships whilst being there, these friendships would never be possible without these workshops. The participants and leaders are very thankful to the organisers and funders of the workshop for what was a brilliant and unforgettable week.

Rural Youth Entrepreneurship project

The RYEurope project (Rural Youth Entrepreneurship) is part funded by the EU Interreg IVB Northern Periphery Programme, under the European Regional Development Fund and is delivered by a partnership across Northern Ireland, Finland, the Faroe Islands, and Greenland. The lead partner for the project is the Rural Development Council for Northern Ireland (RDC).

RYEurope is about developing a new approach or “model” to promote entrepreneurship to young people in rural areas, piloting it, and making it available for others to use. The project began in January 2012 and will run up until March 2014. It aims to reverse rising youth migration caused by high unemployment and lack of opportunity by encouraging rural young people to embrace entrepreneurship.

Through workshops, events and interactive online resources the project is designed to help 16-30 year olds in rural areas to consider what self employment is, and how it works, generate a business idea that will take advantage of new opportunities and develop a Business Action Plan that will provide the tools and the confidence to make their business idea a reality.

To date over 300 young people have participated in the project from Northern Ireland, the Kajaani region of Finland, the Qeqqeta region of Greenland, and the Faroes when the online business action planner was launched at the most recent partnership meeting in August in Torshavn.

As part of the project, participants have also been able to take advantage of the opportunity to travel to other partner countries and meet with both established and new young entrepreneurs from across the partnership and share their experiences.

Many more events will be taking place between now and the end of the project so keep up to date with us on our Facebook page or on the project website. We are also keen to hear from others who are also working to encourage youth entrepreneurship to improve the model in any way, and to share our learning with others.

If you have any queries, or if you would like to discuss any initiatives of your own more information is available about the project on www.ryeproject.eu or by emailing ryeproject@rdc.org.uk.

Best regards from COMEM in Brussels

Hi everyone!

Together with almost 150 other representatives, I attended on 19-20 April 2013 the COMEM (Council of Members) of the European Youth Forum to discuss a number of pressing issues. The two intensive days started with a plenary session at the European Parliament on “Youth and the 2015 Development Agenda” of the UN.

After this opening, several other discussions, panels and numerous voting sessions followed during the COMEM. The highlight was the election of twenty youth organisations for positions on the Council of Europe’s Advisory Council (AC) on Youth. Their representatives will participate in AC meetings, which are setting the Council of Europe’s focus on youth.

A further issue was a policy paper on employment that the assembly has discussed and adopted. With this new policy paper, the Youth Forum is proposing a set of actions, based on the principles of youth-rights and equality, to tackle youth unemployment.

Beside all the official businesses on the agenda, the COMEM was also a good opportunity to meet with partners of Rural Youth Europe, to exchange ideas and discuss about the cooperation and possibility of new joint projects.

Best regards

Greetings from beautiful Monmouth

I am here at the European IFYE conference; which is this year hosted by the Welsh. I will stay here for a week, but already with my first few days here in I have experienced excellent Welsh hospitality. We have had amazing excursions, nice parties and some cool competitions.

I have met many interesting people and heard many interesting stories about IFYE life. Luckily I have been IFYE myself and have hosted few, so I know all about the IFYE programme.

Monday evening we made history, as there were three Rural Youth Europe board members present: Linda Steele from Northern Ireland (chairman 2002-2004), Delme Harries from Wales (chairman 2006-2010) and me (the current one). I was so surprised how many IFYEs have also participated our European rally’s.

So see you, and here’s picture of me and the Welsh Dragon.

AUTUMN SEMINAR 2013
"Inspiring Change": Transforming Communities through Innovation and Entrepreneurship

12 – 19 October 2013 • Malvern, Worcestershire, England
The National Federation of Young Farmers' Clubs (NFYFC) will host the Autumn Seminar 2013 in England. The seminar will explore the theme of youth entrepreneurship in rural communities and aims to strengthen intercultural links through citizenship. The study will answer the following key questions: Why is entrepreneurship important in rural areas? How can social media be used in a positive light to support and grow businesses? What resources do we have at a local level that can facilitate innovation? How can Citizens use innovation and entrepreneurship to make their communities better places now and in the future?

STUDY VISIT TO BRUSSELS
"Grab your future!" – Study visit to improve your advocating skills

9 – 13 December 2013 • Brussels, Belgium
The theme of this study visit is European awareness for rural development. We work on it learning negotiation and lobbying competences, sharing our rural realities, interact with European institutions and creating a base for further cooperation between the partners.
